For the purposes of UK data protection legislation, Gordon & Co Legal Services Limited is the data controller of the personal information that it processes unless otherwise stated.

3. Information We Collect

In the course of providing legal services, we may collect and process personal information including your name, address, date of birth, contact details, employment information, financial information, identification documents and correspondence.

Where necessary for the provision of legal services, particularly in family, immigration, Court of Protection, public law and litigation matters, we may also process special category personal data. This may include information relating to physical health, mental health, racial or ethnic origin, religious beliefs, family circumstances, social care involvement and information relating to children.

Where relevant to the legal services being provided, we may also process information relating to criminal convictions, allegations, investigations, cautions and court proceedings.

We may obtain personal information directly from you or from third parties including courts, tribunals, local authorities, healthcare providers, experts, witnesses, other legal representatives, government departments, insurers and publicly available sources.

4. How We Use Your Information

We process personal information to provide legal advice and representation, conduct litigation, communicate with clients, prepare legal documents, comply with court directions and orders, comply with professional obligations and manage our legal practice.

We may also process information to verify identity, undertake anti-money laundering checks, maintain records, manage complaints, establish, exercise or defend legal claims, improve our services and comply with legal and regulatory requirements.

We will only use personal information for purposes that are lawful and proportionate.

5. Lawful Basis for Processing

The legal basis for processing personal information will depend upon the nature of the work being undertaken.

In most cases, we process personal information because it is necessary for the performance of a contract with you, because it is necessary to comply with a legal obligation or because it is necessary for our legitimate interests in operating and managing our legal practice.

Where we process special category personal data or criminal offence data, we generally rely upon the legal claims exemption, compliance with legal obligations, substantial public interest grounds, the administration of justice or other lawful conditions available under applicable data protection legislation.

6. Disclosure of Information

We may share personal information where necessary with courts, tribunals, barristers, solicitors, experts, mediators, translators, healthcare professionals, insurers, auditors, regulators, government departments, law enforcement agencies and approved service providers who assist us in operating our business.

We only disclose information where there is a lawful basis for doing so and where it is necessary for the provision of legal services or the administration of our practice.

Where third-party providers process information on our behalf, we take reasonable steps to ensure that they maintain appropriate confidentiality, security and data protection standards.

7. Technology and Artificial Intelligence

We may use secure technology systems, including artificial intelligence tools, to assist with administration, legal research, drafting, document review and case management.

Any use of such technology remains subject to our professional duties of confidentiality, legal professional privilege, competence and independent professional judgment. All legal work remains subject to human review and supervision and Gordon & Co Legal Services Limited remains responsible for the legal services provided to clients.

We will take appropriate measures to ensure that any technology used complies with applicable data protection and professional regulatory requirements.

8. International Transfers

Personal information is ordinarily processed within the United Kingdom.

If it becomes necessary to transfer personal information outside the United Kingdom, we will ensure that appropriate safeguards are implemented in accordance with UK data protection legislation to protect your information.

9. Information Security

We maintain appropriate technical and organisational measures designed to protect personal information from unauthorised access, disclosure, alteration, misuse or loss.

These measures include secure electronic systems, restricted access controls, password protection, staff training and other appropriate security arrangements designed to protect confidential information.

Whilst we take reasonable steps to protect information, no method of electronic communication or data storage can be guaranteed to be completely secure.

10. Retention of Information

We retain personal information only for as long as is reasonably necessary for the purposes for which it was collected.

Unless a longer retention period is required by law, regulation, insurer requirements or the nature of the matter, client files will generally be retained for a minimum period of six years following closure of the file.

Certain matters may be retained for longer periods where this is required because of litigation risks, limitation periods, safeguarding considerations, regulatory requirements or the nature of the work undertaken.

At the end of the relevant retention period, information will be securely destroyed or anonymised.

11. Your Rights

Subject to legal and regulatory exceptions, you may have the right to obtain access to your personal information, request correction of inaccurate information, request deletion of information, request restriction of processing, object to processing and request the transfer of your personal information.

Certain rights may be limited where legal professional privilege applies or where disclosure is restricted by law, court order or regulatory obligation.

If you wish to exercise any of your rights, please contact us using the details provided below.

12. Complaints

If you have concerns about how we process your personal information, we encourage you to contact us in the first instance so that we may attempt to resolve the matter.

You also have the right to make a complaint to the Information Commissioner's Office ("ICO"), which is the UK's supervisory authority for data protection matters.
